

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Emerging author Justice McCray publishes The Cost of Espresso and Other Things, his debut collection of short stories at Smashwords.com.

Now available for review

Orlando, Florida - November 8, 2017: Justice McCray is announcing the publication of THE COST OF ESPRESSO AND OTHER THINGS, a collection of short stories that explore the worst facets of love. The e-book consists of four contemporary flash fiction and LGBT stories, and will be available on Smashwords.com May 2018.

The anthology opens with "I Don't." A clumsy young man takes the love of his life on a romantic boat picnic, but the romance goes overboard when he gets friend-zoned.

In the second story, "Matchbox Motel," Miriam and her husband are relocated to a motel after their home burns down. She discovers, much to her dismay, that the arsonist is her spouse.

A young travel photographer is forced to choose between his fiancé and his career, as a waitress attempts to become the third choice in "The Cost of Espresso."

The final work in the anthology, "After P.E." observes the failing relationship between a mother and father, explored through the eyes of an elementary school child.

Justice McCray is a screenwriter, currently earning his Bachelor of Fine Arts in Creative Writing at Full Sail University. His work has been featured in Exposed Literary Magazine and Scarlett Leaf Review. He enjoys the theatre and has stage managed several small productions. In his free time, McCray enjoys baking seasonal desserts, collecting bowties, and playing badminton.

Smashwords is one of the world's largest e-book retailers. The Cost of Espresso and Other Things will be available to read on smartphones, tablets, computers, and E-readers.

Contact

Justice McCray
Full Sail University
Winter Park, FL
1-845-476-4197

###